

Abstract

The invention relates to a vehicle bumper device having an impact face and a method for moving an impact face of a vehicle bumper device upwards and inwards in relation to a vehicle upon impact applied on the impact face. The impact face is attached to a vehicle in an essentially upright state through attaching means. The attaching means are 5 arranged to upon impact cause the impact face to move upwards and inwards in relation to the vehicle while maintaining the essentially upright state.